

WEST HOLLYWOOD

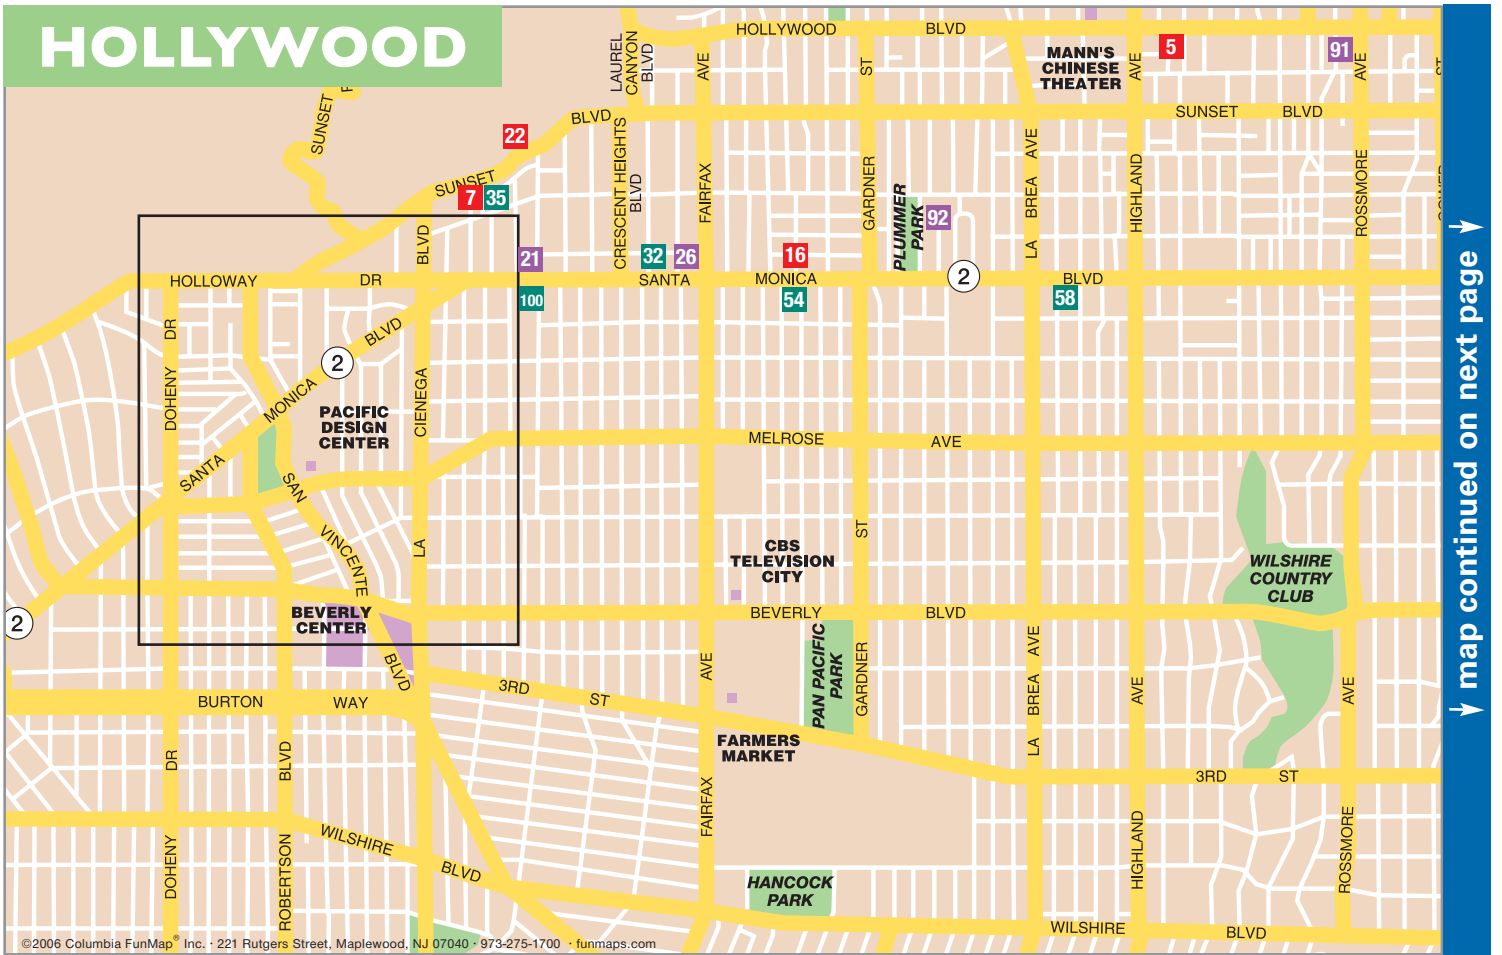

The upscale boutiques that line Sunset Plaza – on Sunset Boulevard between La Cienega and San Vicente boulevards – offer cutting edge designs in fashions and accessories. Free parking is available behind the storefronts. The literary-minded gather at Book Soup, where new, used and hard-to-find books fill the floor-to-ceiling shelves. Join celebrities and entertainment industry powerbrokers out to “do” lunch, or dinner. Sunset Boulevard is also great for dining alfresco and people watching. When the sun goes down, the action is on the Sunset Strip.

The Design District boasts dozens of art and antique galleries, many within walking distance of each other. The Pacific Design Center is the center of the design district at the corner on San Vicente Boulevard and Melrose Avenue. A haven for interior designers and decorating fiends, the distinctive center offers upscale housewares and furnishings at wholesale (still moderate to high) prices. Thanks to the PDC and the Avenue of Art and Design – a district with approximately 300 specialty shops, galleries and showrooms along Melrose Avenue and Beverly and Robertson Boulevards – West Hollywood is known as the interior-design capital of the Pacific Rim.

This main, pedestrian-friendly stretch offers over 75 places to eat, drink and people watch. Just recently, a 2-year reconstruction was completed that widened the sidewalks. Considered by many as the gay and lesbian mecca of Los Angeles, many of its restaurants, clubs and shops cater specifically to the gay and lesbian community. Check out Mickey’s, Rage, Revolver for some of the city’s best nightlife
